DINOSAUR eggs found originally in Tibet have been discovered in America. The "hen" dinosaur that laid them was about 80 feet long. Standing up she could look over tall trees.

These strange animals of all sizes once covered and apparently dominated the earth. Some, carnivorous, lived on the others. Peaceful vegetarians.

Suddenly they vanished at about the same time, and science wonders why.

Swarms of savage rats gnawed their feet, thus destroying them, according to one theory, and, according to another, animals of higher intelligence killed them off. As British and American bipeds are killing off elephants, giraffes and rhinoceroses in Africa.

A third theory describes an outbreak of volcanic eruptions in various parts of the world that filled the atmosphere with dust and made it impossible for the dinosaurs to breathe.

WOMAN HELD IN SHORTAGE AT BANK HERE

Hazel Fies, 23, Pleads Not Guilty When Arraigned on Federal Indictment.

FREE UNDER $1,000 BOND

Charged with Falsifying Records, Misapplying $3,500 of Marion National Funds.

Charged with falsifying records and misapplying funds of the Marion National bank in a secret indictment of a federal grand jury in Toledo, Miss Hazel Louise Fies, 23, of Marion, is free today on $1,000 bond.

In six counts on which she was indicted, she is charged with juggling her account and a fictitious account to the extent of $3,500 while an employe in the Marion National bank. She pleaded not guilty at arraignment. No trial date has been set.

A shortage of $3,500 was discovered last April by bank officials and Miss Fies was immediately discharged. The loss was made good by an insurance company with which all bank employes are under $25,000 bond, bank officials say.

Arrested Monday

Miss Fies has been under surveillance of federal authorities since that time, and yesterday was placed under arrest after she had been indicted by the grand jury in Toledo.

Federal officers say the girl used the money to aid a 21-year-old sweetheart here pay for a new automobile. His name was not revealed.

According to Marion National bank officials, the money was taken from the bank in small quantities over a period of months, and was discovered when a check was made of the alleged fictitious account she had created at the bank.

Miss Fies, who lives at 355 South Prospect street, began working at the bank shortly after her graduation from Harding High school in 1925.

Federal authorities say Miss Fies was advised by letter to go to Toledo several weeks ago following her secret indictment three weeks ago by a grand jury. On her failure to go to the city, she was arrested at her home here yesterday afternoon and taken to federal court.

Not Confined to Jail

At no time has Miss Fies been confined in a prison cell. She was before the court yesterday afternoon and last night was temporarily released to spend the night at a Toledo hotel with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Fies, who followed her to Toledo.

Attempts to arrange satisfactory property bond last night were unsuccessful when it was learned that in order to obtain her release it would be necessary for two bondsmen, one owning property worth twice the amount of the bond, and one owning property of the value of the bond, to effect her release.

By special order of Judge George P. Hahn this morning, the property available was accepted as satisfactory bond. Although names of the bondsmen were not learned, it is believed that the property bond was furnished by her parents.

Although it is not definitely known who was responsible for Miss Fies' arrest at this time, the order came from the district attorney's office at Toledo after Miss Fies had failed to voluntarily appear in court on request of federal officials. The order for her to appear followed her secret indictment in connection with the shortage.

POLICE QUELL HOUR OF RIOTING IN BERLIN

Rowdies Start Fight as Crowds Visit Scene of Fascist Riot Yesterday.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Oct. 14—After an hour of fighting police quelled rioting in the vicinity of the Potsdame Platz early this morning.

The disturbance developed when theater crowds stopped to see the destruction wrought by Fascist bands yesterday during a riot incident to opening of the Reichstag.

Rowdies saw an opportunity to start window smashing all over again and perhaps to profit by pillaging. They insulted the police, who cleared the Potsdame Platz with their clubs after an hour's encounter.

Karl Zoergiebel, chief of police, said virtually none but Fascists had participated in the attacks on Jewish stores yesterday.

Police patrols, both mounted and afoot, guarded the business section of the city today.

It was not expected that yesterday's disturbances would be repeated.

KIDNAPER OF HEIRESS SOUGHT IN MISSOURI

24-Year-Old Daughter of Millionaire Oil Man Abducted from Home.

By The Associated Press

GREENFIELD, Mo., Oct. 14—Kidnaping of Mrs. Alma Wilson McKinley, 24-year-old heiress and expectant mother stirred southwest Missouri today.

Enraged friends joined officers of a score of cities and towns in a patrol of highways from the foothills of the Ozarks to the Missouri river, seeking a small masked man who abducted the girl last night from the ranch home of her father, Benton Wilson, oil millionaire.

Invades Home

The kidnaper, armed with a shotgun, Sheriff Olin Killingsworth said, entered the Wilson home where Mrs. McKinley and her mother were alone. According to the sheriff, he demanded money, but was told there was none in the house. He then forced the girl to accompany him in the car, after binding and gagging her mother.

Mrs. Wilson freed herself after half an hour and notified officers.

The car was last reported seen at Aldrich, Mo., about 20 miles northeast of here. Observers said the machine, a sport coupe, was followed by another car.

Wilson and his two sons, Everett and Earl Wilson and the girl's husband, Harold McKinley, were in Kansas City with a load of cattle when the kidnaping was perpetrated.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, O., Oct. 14—Mal S. Daugherty, banker who figured in the investigation into the Teapot Dome oil lease, was under $40,000 bond today charged with embezzlement, misapplication of funds and falsification of statements.

Daugherty was indicted on 57 counts yesterday by the Fayette county grand jury which investigated the closing last summer of the Ohio State bank, of which he was president, and the Peoples & Drovers bank.

Judge W. H. Rankin of the Fayette county common pleas court today set Oct. 30 as the tentative date for arraignment of Daugherty.

His brother, former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty of Columbus, and his mother, Mrs. Jane Daugherty of this city, signed the bond for his release. Date for arraignment was not set.

Daugherty, it is charged among the 15 indictments, misapplied $34,000 of the Ohio State bank's funds. According to bankruptcy proceedings started by Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, Daugherty owes the two banks $77,000 which he is unable to pay.

BANDIT SOUGHT 2 YEARS SHOT

"Jake" Fleagle Probably Fatally Wounded by Officers in Missouri.

LEADER IN BANK HOLDUP

Directed Robbery in Which Four Men Were Killed; Pals Executed.

By The Associated Press

BRANSON, Mo. Oct. 14—A man identified as "Jake" Fleagle, long sought as the leader of the gang which robbed the First National bank of Lamar, Colo., May 23, 1928, in a bloody holdup in which four were killed, was shot and wounded probably fatally by Kansas City detectives and federal government officers here today.

The man was shot as he attempted to board a Missouri-Pacific train at the station here. He had purchased a ticket for Hollister, another southern Missouri Ozarks resort town a short distance from here.

The Kansas City officers had been sent here on information stating Fleagle was hiding in the hill country.

Fleagle was one of the most sought after criminals in the United States.

He was hunted by police throughout the country and the search for him extended into Mexico but he managed to elude capture for more than two years following the holdup of the Lamar bank.

Three of Fleagle's companions in the robbery of the bank are dead, having been executed in this state. The trio - Ralph E. Fleagle, brother E. of Jake, Howard L. Royston and George J. Abshier—were convicted of slaying A. N. Parrish, president of the bank and one of the two men shot down as they attempted to thwart the holdup.

FILE BRIEFS IN RAICHLEY WILL HEARING

Attorneys for Both Sides Submit Written Arguments with Court.

FIGHT PROBATE DECISION

Whether Executors Had Right To Pay Fees, Question Involved in Suit.

The right of executors to pay attorney fees in a will contest suit is the point at issue which Judge George B. Scofield of common pleas court must decide in an appeal to his court made by executors of the will of the late Burr Raichley, in the case of the Marion Masonic Temple Co. against Harry J. Merchant and Clyde C. Smith, executors.

Oral arguments on the appeal were heard by the court yesterday afternoon, following which attorneys for both sides submitted briefs which Judge Scofield will read before giving his decision.

Appeal Gast Decision

The appeal was made from a decision handed down last December in probate court by Judge Oscar Gast, who ruled at that time that attorneys fees totaling more than $30,000 should be returned to the estate. He contended that legatees and not the executors are responsible for the defense of a contested will, and that executoors therefore were not empowered to pay attorney fees.

Judge Gast's ruling came after exceptions had been filed by the Marion Masonic Temple Co., principal beneficiary of the will, to accounts of Merchant and Smith, who paid fees totaling $32,000 to four Marion attorneys and an Upper Sandusky lawyer. The local attorneys were John H. Bartram, who was paid $8,500; James H Eymon, who was given $7,746.33; Fred E. Guthery, who was paid $8,500, and Grant E. Mouser Sr., who was given $5,500. A. K. Hall of Upper Sandusky, the other attorney involved, was paid $2,000.

In addition to claiming that attorney fees were excessive and illegally paid, the Marion Masonic Temple Co. also claimed that the executors paid themselves excessive compensation for their services. They paid themselves a total of $6,121.33, and Judge Gast ruled that $1,200 should be returned to

MYSTERY CONTINUES IN DIAMOND CASE

Questioning of Second Woman in Gang Shooting Gets No Results.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 Activities which brought a second young woman into the case found police today no nearer a solution of the shooting of Jack Legs Diamond than when he was found in a hotel Sunday, with five bullet wounds in his body.

The wounded gangster, after a day in which he rallied from the effects of his wounds, took a sudden turn for the worse early today. Hospital attendants said he became restless and complained of being in great pain.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney said evidence which had been gathered indicated Diamond had been shot by members of his own gang and not by rival gangsters.

Jean Nash, formerly owner of a beauty parlor in Newark N. J., was the second girl to be questioned. She was brought in after police received an anonymous telephone call saying she had been heard to say in a West 52nd street grill last week that Diamond had less than 10 days to live.

She denied knowing Diamond or any of the other persons mentioned in the case. Police released her after four hours' questioning.

All day questioning of Miss Marion Strusmick, or Roberts, chorus girl, failed to add anything material to her original story that two men had been announced while Diamond was in her room Sunday forenoon and that he had gone to his own room to receive them. She denied hearing the shots.

Efforts were redoubled today to locate Jacob Ginsberg, manager of the Monticello hotel, in which Diamond was shot by two men. Ginsberg, described a close friend of Diamond, disappeared after having the wounded gangster taken into the Ginsberg suite in the hotel and calling an ambulance.

By The Associated Press

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 14—The campaign of Dwight W. Morrow for United States Senator was under way today after an opening speech in which he eliminated himself as a candidate for the presidency in 1932.

He repeated his stand for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and restoration of state rights in the control of liquor which he announced at the opening of his primary campaign five months ago.

He praised the administration of President Hoover, stressing especially the work of the London disarmament conference to which he was a delegate.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—James A. Walker, now in his second term as mayor of New York, is tired of his job.

POLICE BATTLE COMMUNISTS

Hand-to-Hand Conflict Staged Outside Boston Convention Hall.

NEARLY SCORE ARRESTED

Streets Near Federation of Labor Meeting Scene of Demonstration.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Oct. 14 Communists and police engaged in a hand-to-hand battle outside the convention hall of the American Federation of Labor today. Several arrests were made.

The disorder started when police attempted to break up a demonstration by the Communists, after having denied them admittance to the Hotel Bradford, in which the Federation of Labor sessions are being held.

When police arrested one speaker, who tried to address the crowd, other Communists attempted to rescue him.

Furious Struggle Occurs

A furious struggle then ensued between the crowd of Communists and police. Police reserves sped to the aid of the police detail at the hotel and a number of Communists were taken away in patrol wagons.

Police commandeered a taxicab to carry other Communists to a nearby station. One taxicab was almost captured by the mob, which leaped upon its running boards and nearly succeeded in rescuing a prisoner.

While the battle was at its height, the business of the Federation convention continued uninterrupted, although some of the more curious delegates watched the struggle from balcony windows.

During the melee, police used their clubs freely. Mounted police arrived a few moments after the trouble began and were particularly effective against the militant Communists.

Women in Ranks

A number of women were included in the Communists' ranks and their screams added to the general confusion.

When the Communists finally were dispersed, after fully 20 minutes of fighting, the number actually arrested was estimated at between 12 and 20.

Police had advance warning of the demonstration in hand bills circulated freely last week, calling upon the "Militant Workers of Boston" to join in a mass demonstration outside the Federation convention hall today.

Party Echoes

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 14—The Harvard college paper says the American Legion convention in Boston was "just one wild party."

Poor Harvard papers, they have a habit that is just bordering on genius for saying the wrong things. Imagine any college paper criticizing somebody for giving a wild party.

Wait till another war comes and let the Harvard editorial staff fight it, and then they can show how a convention should be conducted.

Where the mistake was made, was in not asking our boys when recruited, if they ever took a little nip and if they did, why not allow 'em in our war.

In that way we could have had a respectable war, but lost it.

Yours.

THIRD READING PROVES FATAL TO ORDINANCE

Eight Members Cast Unanimous Vote Against Plan; One Absent.

GREEN CAMP LINE KILLED

Council Also Orders Hardness of City Water Reduced to 12 Grains.

An emphatic and decisive "no" by unanimous vote was city council's answer last night to the 60 cent gas rate proposal of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.

Councilmen walked from the caucus chamber, apparently of one accord so far as the gas question was concerned, and speeded the proposed rate ordinance of the gas company through routine procedure to a final vote. Eight "no" replies were the result of the roll call, one member being absent. Applause from the small crowd in the gallery followed action of council.

The only words outside of the routine reading and voting spoken on the gas question in open meeting by either councilmen or onlookers were those of President C. P. Merkel when the final vote was taken: "That settles the gas question for a little while."

Water Too Hard

Apparently in no mood to mince words with public utilities, council in the same meeting ordered action to reduce the number of grains of hardness of city water. Report of the city chemist indicated the hardness of the water has exceeded limits set in the franchise of the Marion Water Co. on several occasions in the last few days.

Council's action on the gas proposal at least temporarily removes the possibility of Marion dropping from the five-year gas rate fight before Ohio courts and the public utilities commission in which this city was a leader. It also indicates the willingness of council to wait on a decision of the Ohio supreme court on valuations fixed on gas company property by the utilities commission, and the subsequent rate schedules to be drawn in the near future by the commission.

Questioned after the meeting, council members declared they believed it the wish of the people to wait on the courts and the utilities commission to settle the case rather than effect a local gas rate settlement. The proposed rate of the gas company was declared by councilmen to be unfair to the small consumer.

Definite rejection of the proposal means that the proposed eight-inch main line to join the city system with trunk lines at Green Camp, claimed necessary by company officials if Marion is to have adequate gas service this winter, will not be built this fall.

The rate fight before the commission and Ohio courts is now before the state supreme court on error where it was taken by the gas company in an effort to have valuations fixed on company leaseholds by the commission increased. If the court approves the valuations, the case will be remanded to the commission and a valuation approximating $11,000,000 will be used for rate making purposes by the commission. If the court does not approve the commission's valuations, the case will be remanded for rehearing and new evidence as to the true value of the leaseholds will be submitted.

GET LIFE TERMS 12 HOURS AFTER HOLDUP

Michigan Bandit Killers Sentenced After Confessing Murder and Robbery.

By The Associated Press

CENTERVILLE, Mich., Oct. 14—Only a little more than 12 hours following their capture after the killing of a state policeman and the robbery of a bank at Battle Creek, Thomas Martin, 30, and James Gallagher, 28, were sentenced in circuit court here today to life imprisonment in Jackson prison.

The $4,000 bank loot was recovered. Martin fired the three shots which struck Trooper Burke in the neck, causing instant death, according to the confession, Burke, they said, overtook them on his motorcycle. They halted, Burke approached the car on foot and started questioning them. Gallagher, who was driving drew his pistol, Burke batted it aside and Martin, drawing his gun, killed the trooper.

For the first time, bank robbers matched their wits with the new state police radio system, and lost. Less than four hours after the bank robbery was reported, 35 police cars, their cars receiving instructions by radio, were concentrated in the Sturgis area. Within little more than four hours, the slayers were under arrest.

Marion Housewives Hear First Lecture of Cooking School Today

BY EDNA S. DUTTON
Marion Star Staff Writer

THE stage in the Star's auditorium was home to hundreds of women this afternoon as they watched Mrs. Emily M. Lautz measure, blend, pour, and in a little while produce as though by magic the most deliciously surprising concoctions in the first of the series of four lectures in the Star's free cooking school this afternoon.

Pencils and papers were busy and occasionally there could be heard a whispered approval as Mrs. Lautz's busy fingers kept pace with her words as she chatted with her audience on this business of being a housewife. Following the lecture Mrs. Lautz met her audience as it filed past the tables inspecting the results of the afternoon's work.

Early arrivals had ample time to view the exhibit which this year includes an extensive line of household appliances and suggestions. Answers to the problem of what to wear in the kitchen, how to set a table for luncheon, dinner or tea, suggestions for dessert, the newest and most up-to-date articles in kitchen utensils together with other articles and appliances all are solved in the articles found in the exhibit.

The "well dressed" kitchen will be gay in colors if the pots and pans which are being used by Mrs. Lautz may be taken as a hint; dinnerware will be in any tint desirable and cutlery will be elaborate and in combinations of colors and crystal. Not to be overlooked are the table linens which are a decided departure from the snowy linens of other years to the delicate tones of blues and other shades.

Children were cared for in the nursery this afternoon as they will be each afternoon during the series.

France May Inaugurate Special Motorist Court

PARIS—Special courts for hearing all cases involving motorists are advocated by the Paris Chamber of Commerce. Magistrates in the courts it is recommended should have special knowledge of motor cars and motoring.

Cases concerning motoring accidents it is urged, often involve technical points which only people who know something of the construction of a motor car and something, too, of driving one, can possibly understand.

"When modern enterprise joins hands with sure-footed experience, success becomes a certainty. The fusion of these two important factors has given Thompson-Starrett over a billion dollars worth of activity in thirty years. It is interesting to note the application of this same principle in your business. Its clear evidence is your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos."

ONCE STAR CARRIER, NOW DISTRICT U. S. ATTORNEY

John B. Osmun Starts as Pumper for Pipe Organ, Prosecutes Bootleggers.

BY MARION O. CHENOWETH
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 14—Outstanding among the thousands of persons who are interested in the dedication of the tomb of former President Warren G. Harding in Marion, is a former Marion man, who as a lad in his 'teens, was one of Harding's carrier boys on The Marion Star staff.

The man, who still remembers the friendly smiles and the shoulder pats given him by the country's former chief executive while he managed The Star, is John B. Osmun, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Osmun of 846 North Main street, Marion. Osmun today holds the responsible position of assistant United States attorney for the northern district of Ohio. His office is in Cleveland.

A friendship which had its genesis when John, a lanky and freckle-faced youth, entered the office of The Marion Star and applied to Harding for a job carrying papers, still exists in the heart of the former Marionite.

"The Harding tomb," declared Osmun, as he looked at a picture of the deceased president, which hangs on the wall of his office in the federal building, "is a gift from the heart of the nation."

Born Here in 1898

The town of Marion first heard of John Osmun on July 15, 1898, when there appeared in The Marion Star a short item announcing the birth of another son to Mr. and Mrs. James W. Osmun. From that time on the community heard a great deal of him, and many there were who knew him as "Jawn" or as "one of the Osmun boys."

John was invested with considerable energy and ambition in his early life and before he began peddling papers for Harding, he was the official sexton of the St. Paul's Episcopal church at the age of 10 years. After several months of crawling from his bed early on Sunday mornings to ring the church bell, the lad was promoted to the job of operator of the hand-pump which supplied the wind for the church's organ.

Displaying unusual talent in oratory, John held the limelight during his high school career at Marion high as the class of 1917 spokesman. He was picked in 1917 to give the address of thanks for a silk flag which was presented to the high school by the grand encampment of the G. A. R. which was held here that year.

The profession of law had attracted his attention long before he entered Ohio Northern university at Ada, O. In the fall of 1917, Engerly he delved into the many volumes of law texts and was graduated from the institution in 1921.

John's next step would have been to nail the proverbial shingle on some building in Marion had it not been for Grant E. Mouser Sr., who at that time was judge of the Marion county common pleas court. A few days after he had returned from school, John was called into the Mouser court chambers, and the conversation, as near as John can remember it, ran something like this:

Talks With Judge

"John," the judge said, after the graduation congratulations, "I have been watching you for a good many years and I think you have the stuff in you for a big city lawyer."

John forgets just exactly how he answered the judge, but he does remember that he was thrilled and excited over the prospect of beginning his legal work in a big city. It was decided that he should go to Cleveland and he arrived here a few days later with a letter of introduction from Judge Mouser to Luther Day, one of Cleveland's outstanding lawyers and now president of the Cleveland Bar association.

Not having a vacancy in his office at that time, Day sent young Osmun to the office of James R. Garfield, son of former President Garfield, and John became a member of the Garfield staff. For four years Osmun handled many varieties of cases which came into the Garfield office and in 1925, at the age of 27, he obtained an appointment with the government as assistant U. S. attorney.

JOHN B. OSMUN

Prosecuting hundreds of federal cases, Osmun has gained considerable notoriety as a federal lawyer. It was Osmun who uncovered the famous Pennsylvania brewery case of 1927, which was one of the largest liquor cases ever handled in a federal court.

The first to discover the existence of the huge brewery ring, Osmun pushed investigation and prosecution until he had won more than 20 convictions in the case.

Breaks Up Gang

While conducting the prosecution of a small liquor case in federal court, Osmun stumbled onto the large liquor ring through a chance remark from a witness he was questioning on the stand. Further investigation revealed that carloads of beer were being sent regularly to various points in Ohio from the headquarters of the ring in Pennsylvania. Osmun is given the credit for breaking up the gang of beer runners and halting its hugh liquor traffic.

Shortly after Osmun was appointed to the office of assistant U. S. attorney in 1925, he was married to Miss Gladys Bauer, the daughter of Adam Bauer, Marion photographer, who was graduated from Marion High School with Osmun in 1917.

John is a member of a family of six boys and one girl. The family, according to John, was always alluded to as "The Osmun boys, each of whom has a sister." The sister is now Mrs. Helen Eberhart of 846 North Main street, Marion.

His brothers are: Walter, who is engaged in the motor business on South State street, Marion; Ralph, a druggist of Wheeling, W. Va.; Frank, a salesman for the Murdock Rubber Co., Akron; Homer, a dairy farm operator at Prospect, O.; Harold, a merchant at Denmark, O.

RELIEF THAT KONJOLA GAVE CAME TO STAY

Grateful Lady Tells How New Medicine Proved Exactly What She Needed

MRS. BELLE HIRLINGER

"I lost 20 pounds in the two years I suffered from indigestion, biliousness, liver and kidney troubles," said Mrs. Belle Hirlinger, 212 South Shepard avenue, Bellevue, Kentucky, across from Cincinnati. "When I stooped and then straightened suddenly I became very dizzy. I was up several times nightly. The great toe on my left foot turned black. My ankles were swollen and my knees were stiff and sore.

"I was about at the end of my string when I decided to try Konjola. This new medicine went right to the source of my trouble. I took ten bottles and my illness left me completely. I gained eighteen pounds in weight. This was a year ago and I am still in excellent health. There is no medicine to compare with Konjola."

Konjola does work swiftly but a complete trial of six to eight bottles is recommended. A real test, as in the case of Mrs. Hirlinger—gets results.

Konjola is sold in Marion, Ohio, at Stump & Sams Pharmacy, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Although a majority of the tests of the hardness have shown the water to be at the 12 mark or slightly below, there were several days when the hardness ran as high as 12.5 grains, according to the tests made by Floyd G. Browne, superintendent of the sewage disposal plant and city chemist.

FILE BRIEFS IN RAICHLEY WILL CASE

Attorneys for Both Sides Submit Written Arguments with Court.

the estate at the same time that he ordered attorney fees returned to the estate.

Attorney Lyle Evans of Chillicothe, counsel for the Marion Masonic Temple Co., told the court his client's records would show that the attorneys to whom the objected payments were made were employed by the Marion Masonic Temple Co. and not by the executors. He also claimed that the $32,000 paid to attorneys was excessive, although it was agreed that the court had no jurisdiction over this point.

Attorneys Hector S. Young and J. Malcolm Strelitz, representing the executors and the five attorneys, contended that the real issue concerned the executors' right to pay attorney fees in a contested suit and both cited court decisions in their favor.

The only attorney whose payment was not ordered returned is J. H. Eymon, whom probate court held was entitled to $3,571.33 of the $7,746.33 he received, since he was employed as legal advisor by the executors. The others, however, were employed by the Marion Masonic Temple Co. and should have been paid by them, he held.

The Marion Masonic Temple Co. was bequeathed a $60,000 property north of the postoffice for use as a site for a new lodge building. In addition, the temple company was to receive the remainder of the $134,000 estate after numerous small bequests had been distributed.

The will contest case first was started by heirs in an effort to set aside the will following Raichley's death in March, 1924. It went through the federal court at Toledo, the federal appellate court at Cincinnati and the United States supreme court before it was finally settled in the common pleas court of Wyandot county at Upper Sandusky.

DIRECTOR SPEAKS AT BUREAU MEET

Mrs. M. L. Steva Addresses Three Boards of Local Farm Group.

Mrs. M. L. Steva, a state director of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, of Auglaize county, was speaker at a joint meeting of three Marion county Farm Bureau board members in the Y. M. C. A. last night.

"Our Farm Bureau" was the topic of Mrs. Steva's address, in which she pointed out the bureau believes in adequate standards of living on the farm made possible by proceeds from the farm. She also defined the responsibility of various officers of the bureau, and urged cooperation of those present in Farm Bureau week next week.

Forty persons comprising members of the service board, the Farm Bureau board, and the livestock board and their wives, heard the talk and participated in a program that followed a dinner at 7:30 p. m.

Thomas C. Grossman, president of the Marion county Farm Bureau, presided at the meeting. A contest in which the board members answered "true" or "false" to 25 questions pertaining to Farm Bureau work was held. After the questions had been tabulated, correct answers were discussed by E. K. Augustus, district director, Roland Leeper, district commodity manager, Jerald Miller, livestock manager, and Paul Smith, service manager.

After the program, each board held a short separate session to transact business for the month.

FORMER BANK HEAD UNDER INDICTMENT

he had not borrowed funds from the Ohio State bank and transferred the money to Daugherty, as charged by the state.

The investigation of the banks' affairs was taken up at the instance of a group of citizens after the bankruptcy proceedings were instituted. The failures caused considerable financial difficulties in Fayette county and the county itself ran short of money when $50,000 on deposit in the Ohio State bank was tied up by litigation.

The investigation is not yet completed and the grand jury will be recalled Nov. 12.

Six years ago Daugherty was cited for contempt of the senate when he refused a senate committee permission to examine the books of the Midland bank, rumored to have on deposit funds alleged to have been transferred in the Teapot Dome deals. At that time Daugherty was president of the Midland bank, which later was merged with two other institutions to form the Ohio State bank.

The citation, however, was never pressed.

Vincent appeared in court today, accepted service of the warrant and was released under bond of $1,000. The date on which he and Daugherty will be required to plead to the indictments has not been assigned.

VICTORY IS SCORED BY BRAZIL REBELS

Rout Large Federal Force in Five-Hour Conflict Near Gallipolis.

By The Associated Press

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Oct. 14—Brazilian revolutionary troops, fighting for five hours near Gallipolis, in the Parana, Sao Paulo border area, have routed a large federal force, inflicting severe casualties.

An official insurgent announcement at Porto Alegre, capital of Rio Grande Do Sul, said the battle was the hardest fought thus far of the engagements, along the 200-mile Parana-Sao Paulo front for the possession of Sao Paulo.

The first battalion of the revolutionary army attacked the federal position early yesterday after advancing to a point between Affonso Camargo and Carlopolis. Desperate fighting ensued and after five hours the federals gave way, leaving dead and wounded and supplies behind them. They fled toward Carlopolis.

Many prisoners were taken, the announcement said, among the supplies were rifles and machine guns. The revolutionary troops also sustained some casualties.

In another encounter along the long front, the right of which is in the state of Sao Paulo and the left in Parana, the revolutionary forces took 35 prisoners and captured a large quantity of supplies, munitions and two machine guns.

Although fighting incident to the revolution against the government of President Washington Luis is in progress in at least three or four important areas, it has appeared here that the major operation of the civil war may be that which is unfolding along the Parana-Sao Paulo frontier.

Special Shampoo for Fluffy Golden Tresses

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

SHAMPOOING artificially gained golden locks, when peroxide has been used for bleaching, often presents a serious beauty problem. It seems that when the hair is bleached and only ordinary shampooing methods are followed, the hair has a tendency to mat no matter how carefully one may be in washing and rinsing.

Therefore, I will write today of a specially worked out shampoo which will make it possible to cleanse the hair thoroughly and leave it in the soft, fluffy state that is desirable.

This special shampoo for hair which has been bleached requires six eggs, two lemons and considerable rubbing and rinsing but the results justify the effort. It may seem expensive but after you've proven it is satisfactory you won't mind its slightly higher cost.

The whites and yolks of six eggs should be beaten separately. The yolks should be beaten until they are light and the whites until a stiff consistency is gained.

Use only luke warm water at all times during the shampoo. If hot water is used the process will not be successful as the same matting which so often occurs with ordinary soap shampooing will result.

Also, a spray should be used for wetting and rinsing the hair. This is true with all shampoos, of course, because it makes rinsing so much simpler.

When the hair has been completely saturated with the luke warm water, rub a little of the beaten yolk over the hair, using the finger tips thro... and on the scalp for ... two before rinsing. ... application ... rinsing ...

Use the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs in exactly the same manner, applying only a little at a time, rubbing it through the hair and on the scalp well and rinsing out each application before applying the succeeding one until all of the whites have been used.

After the final rinse to remove the last of the white of eggs, add the strained juice of two lemons to one pint of luke warm water and pour this slowly over the hair, moving it about continually so that the lemon water is evenly distributed over all parts of the scalp as well as through the hair itself. The lemon water may be rinsed out or left to dry on the hair as you desire.

If rinsing has been adequate before the lemon water is used and if only luke warm water has been put on the hair, it will not be sticky or will not mat at the completion of the shampoo.

Fool laws always die; but, oh, the weary time it takes them to do it.

Daily Proverb—"Arrogance is a weed that grows mostly on a dunghill."

"Raiders Make Cicero Unsafe for Public Foes," reads a headline in a Chicago paper. That comes pretty close to covering the ground. That Chicago suburb has long been unsafe for the public.

"Russia Drives Idle to Work by Stopping Doles," reads a headline. In one respect, at least, soviet Russia shows more courage and more business sense than the government of Great Britain.

Indiana W. C. T. U. workers are reported to have been shocked at the drinking indulged at a recent Indiana university football game. Let 'em cheer up. If they attend enough football games, they'll probably get used to it.

A Cincinnati pastor holds that "soup and suppers will never win the world for Christ." Maybe not, but they may serve to get the members together and facilitate acquaintance, which would be something of an achievement in some churches in this day of the motor car, real and pee-wee golf and the movies.

The Portland, Oregon, man convicted of having used vile language over station KVEP, since outlawed, faces a $5,000 fine, or five years' imprisonment, or both. The infliction of both might be a trifle severe, but, even so, that would be better than the customary slap on the wrist.

Britain will collect $5,000,000 inheritance dues from the $12,500,000 estate left by the Duke of Northumberland. Confiscation of property for the operations of government has gone pretty close to the limit in Great Britain.

Wickersham on the Crime Situation.

George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement commission, suggests that careful inquiry into the results of flogging as a punishment for certain offenses and a prevention of further wrongdoing may well be made to determine the desirability of employing it in the war against banditry and racketeering.

Having made this suggestion to the American Prison association, assembled in annual convention in Louisville, Kentucky, Judge Wickersham went on to state that in England and Canada flogging by the "birch" or "cat-o'nine-tails" is inflicted, but that he knew of but one state in this country, Delaware, where the whip is used.

"As a deterrent to others," the judge said, "flogging would seem a priori to present great advantages, but it would be unsafe to assume that as a fact without inquiring into the subsequent career of the flogged offenders as well as into the general effect upon the volume of crimes of the character thus punished."

And then, contending that this country's penal laws and their administration follow traditional lines in the main, being a hopeless mixture of revengeful and reformatory measures executed in an imperfect and haphazard manner, Judge Wickersham gave what will probably prove to have been an advance tip on what one phase of his committee's report will be, by saying:

"Much modern crime of the spectacular sort is organized and conducted by fearless men using modern methods and acting on the principle of audacity and surprise. Nowhere do the police forces appear to have developed methods of defense equal in intelligence and method to those of the aggressors. Nowhere, apparently —not even in Chicago—has an enlightened and imperative public sentiment demanded that the police forces be reorganized, given adequate appropriations and held strictly accountable for the protection of public order."

And here in a nutshell is the weakness of the fight being waged the country over on crime. There may be municipalities, but they are the rare exception, where public sentiment has been awakened to the pitch where it demands and insists on steady, consistent, enlightened action against crime and is persistent in its insistence. There is a crime, or a series of crimes, and the public flares up in a demand for action. But the flare-up usually proves to be a mere "flash in the pan." A week passes, possibly two or three, and the interest of the citizenship dwindles. Two or three months pass, and the crime, or crime wave, is forgotten, unless it be that the offenders in major crimes are apprehended, indicted and tried, which again is the exception rather than the rule. In other words, the decent citizenship is not giving the law and those to whom the enforcement of the law is entrusted the attention and support the criminal world is giving crime. And it is a fact which should be realized, if it is not, that police reorganization under a civil service system is something of a joke, if it is not impossible, when the people of a community withhold information, as most of them do, when by speaking at a hearing they could give valuable assistance in making a reorganization of a police department an actuality rather than a matter about which to talk.

The Canadian Liquor System.

"What this country should have is a system for handling the liquor problem similar to that of Canada."

There are few of us who do not hear the foregoing expression of view, or its equivalent, from time to time. Many of us hear something along the same line daily. It's a stock-in-trade utterance of the "personal liberty" element and of those who, for one reason or another, are allied with it. Under government control, we are told, the deplorable conditions which admittedly obtain in this country could no longer exist. The rum-runners, the bootleggers and the blind tigers would disappear and, so far as liquor conditions are concerned, the United States would quickly become a veritable Utopia.

This, however, does not get into line with the view of Ben Spence, managing director of the Canadian prohibition bureau. The present deplorable conditions in this country, he holds, "would be as a pink tea to a barbecue if the Canadian system of handling the liquor problem were put into operation in the United States."

Starting out with the assumption that the present population of this country is twelve and a half times that of Canada, Mr. Spence figures that we would have down here to the south of the international line twelve and a half times as many distilleries making twelve and a half times as much liquor annually, which same ratio would apply also to breweries and their product and we would spend for liquor in the same proportion.

The result would be that there would be established here 313 distilleries under private ownership with an annual product of 210,203,896 proof gallons of spiritous liquors; 1,075 breweries manufacturing 825,465,625 gallons of malt liquor annually, and an immense number of "wineries," while the liquor bill would be twelve and a half times that of the people of Canada or $2,407,745,033.

Another result, Director Spence points out, would be the creation of 3,000 jobs, with which to reward party workers, with a yearly payroll of about $7,500,000. "It would be a carnival of corruption," he asserts, "such as no country has ever yet seen. Imagine Tammany or Philadelphia, or Chicago supervising the buying of $100,000,000 of booze from breweries."

The picture as painted by the Canadian director is not an attractive one. It portrays a condition which few, if any, of us want down here. As a matter of fact, it is to be questioned if the brains of the wet element want it. The wet element generally holds out the Canadian system "" an ideal one, not so much because that system appeals to it particularly, but rather because anything which can be held out as a substitute for prohibition is dug up and utilized by it. Its fight is on the prohibition law. But the thinkers among the wets are looking beyond the present into the future. They know that a great element of the American people, perhaps half of our citizenship, will never be satisfied with conditions such as the adoption of the Canadian system would produce down here. They have in mind conditions as they realy are in Canada and they know, too, the awful results of the adoption of the dispensary system down in South Carolina. The brains of the wet element must be credited with seeking a better system than the much-touted Canadian plan, for it is their desire not only to have the distilleries and the breweries restored, but also the open and aboveboard operation of distilleries and breweries maintained, and they realize that the Canadian system, if adopted here, would not attain that end.

Grazed by one gangster bullet and with four in his body, it is manifest that "Legs" Diamond knew his business when he left the country, even though he fell down on staying out of it. It's the old story. He was shot up by gangsters, who probably paid the four gangsters guarding him more to betray him than he was paying them for protection. Crime doesn't pay.

Mexico City church officials incline to the belief that last week's story of the slaying of eighty worshipers in a church in the Mexican state of Tobasco refers to a happening of a year ago. Even Mexican correspondents should realize that reporting a story a year late is carrying the manana habit to the extreme.

There are 3,088,000 persons unemployed in Germany, only 2,000,000 of whom are protected in part by unemployment insurance. Here probably may be had the real explanation for the enormous gains Adolf Hitler was able to make in the recent election.

It is explained that the reduction of 4,800 in navy personnel will be by wastage—through deaths and retirement of men at the expiration of their enlistments—and that it will not add to unemployment as reenlistments will be welcomed. If such is the case, it's hard to understand why the navy department held the "reduction" out as an economy measure.

The Cunard line has abandoned the sailing of the Samaria on a world cruise dated for December 3 for lack of bookings. The chief cause for the cancellation is held to be the period of business depression, but a contributing cause is the growing popularity of shorter cruises at the expense of around-the-world trips, the majority of patrons not having found the latter the travel dreams anticipated.

VISITING NATIONAL PARKS.

By the very law of action and reaction the growing prominence of the American tourist abroad should have elicited a counter-movement in favor of "Seeing America First." The reason why that cry is so seldom raised nowadays is that vast numbers of Americans are, as a matter of fact, seeing their own country. For every transatlantic vacationist we have at least ten visitors to the national parks. In the year ended September 30 they numbered 2,818,000, an increase of nearly 140,000 over the preceding year. Conceivably certain untoward events in the economic and financial world last fall may have encouraged a holiday in the national playgrounds instead of the more expensive trip to Europe. Counting something short of half a million visitors to the national monuments, this year's excursionists would be well over three and a quarter millions. In the year 1916 the visitors to the national parks were about one-tenth as many. As late as the year 1919 they numbered less than 800,000.

Of course, the automobile has done it. Virtually all of the twenty-one parks now open to the public lie in the Rockies, or to the west, a region whose total population is between three and four times the number of park visitors. Whether they came from near by or from all over the country, it represents a per capita volume of travel of which not all of our approximately 30,000,000 automobiles can steal the wonder and awe. The closing of the pioneer age in America is really the opening up of an era of unprecedented mobility. To the three-odd million visitors in the national parks add the American summer tourists in Canada, sometimes estimated at close to five millions, and the long distance tourists whose route does not take them through one of the national holiday grounds, and we get a body of human movement for which there is not the slightest approach in history. If the ordinary week-end trip in the family car be taken into account, comparisons become impossible.

Of this vast body of tourists it is the visitors to the national parks who see a good deal more of America than her asphalt and her filling stations. Conceding the passion for speed for its own sake, it is still true that the disease brings its remedy. The automobile does bring one to the mountains and woods. More than half of the twenty-one national parks have been created in the automobile era. To the education in nature's wild places furthered by the automobile in the Far West may be credited the establishment of the first and virtually sole national park east of the Mississippi. This is the Great Smoky Mountains park which the collaboration of the states of North Carolina and Tennessee and the munificence of Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., have made possible. The park is fast moving on toward acquisition of the 427,000 acres prescribed by congress as the minimum area.—New York Times.

IS DEPRESSION GOOD FOR US?

The business depressions through which the country passes now and then may not be the unmixed evils that many of us believe them to be, if the testimony of the head of a great casket company may be accepted.

On the basis of this man's statement, the great mass of the population are in better health and cling to an unattractive life more tenaciously during periods of depression than in times of great prosperity. This man, whose company earns around $1,000,000 or more a year, declares that the mortality rate in the United States is lower in periods of depression than in seasons of prosperity.

Incongruous upon first thought, conviction may attend analysis of the statement. It is to be believed that a lower death rate rides with simpler living and the less hectic existence we follow in periods when even the pennies count. Our leaner bodies, sustained by the simpler foods and drinks, resist disease and dissolution more effectively than bodies made soft and flabby by lives of overindulgence, weakened by too much energy-demanding play. When we are flush of pocket we burn the candle at both ends; when pockets are lean we make the light at one end serve—and wax healthy.

So, according to this informal testimony—that of P. B. Heintz, president of the National Casket company—we tighten our hold upon life as we earn less and spend less.

If we have been in a period of depression, and if we are getting back into the sunlight of a newer and better prosperity, we may expect the fine force of a more frugal existence to pass on into the months to come and fortify us against the table and entertainment excesses that are before us.

As life is the most valuable of our possessions, may not the tonic be worth the price we have been paying? The simpler life has been assayed by many civilizations and it is well that its treasures be not forgotten; that we have the evidence laid before our unseeing eyes, even if it does come from so melancholy a source—the casket manufacturing industry. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Upset System Causes Hives.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Any swelling of the skin, developing suddenly, may be considered a form of hives. It is a troublesome and irritating ailment to have. One form which is very common is called "nettle-rash." There are small, red spots. The skin feels as though a poisonous nettle had been drawn across its surface. It burns, smarts and itches intolerably.

Another less common variety is known as "giant hives." In this there is a single very large swelling. It may be filled with blood.

If you have hives you will be pleased to know the trouble may last for only a few hours. Unfortunately it may go on for days. The swellings may disappear and then reappear.

Although hives may appear at any time of life, it is an ailment most common in childhood. It is unlikely to attack unless there is a weakened condition of the system or a considerable degree of undernourishment.

It is usual to find that some sort of food poisoning caused this ailment. There is a close sympathetic relationship between the digestive tract and the skin. When the stomach is upset or some toxic poisons are found in the intestines then hives appear.

There are drugs which are capable of exciting skin trouble. Quinine, cubebs and various coaltar drugs are numbered among such.

Some times the inflammation is really acute. Fever and delirium may come on and the patient is decidedly ill. It is not pleasant to have such an attack.

The quicker the cause is removed the better. It is wise to consult a doctor whenever hives last more than an hour.

It helps the itching and inflammation very much to apply locally a solution of hyposulphite of soda. Dissolve a tablespoonful in half a glass of water and with it mop the inflamed skin. If the whole body is involved a half pound of the hyposulphite may be poured into a bathtub half full of water. The patient may bathe in it for some twenty minutes.

The bowels should be thoroughly cleansed and the diet be limited for a few days. Your physician will know better than any one else what to do.—Copyright, 1930, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Oct. 14—Many people have the impression that a United States senator spends most of his time and energy in Washington battling for or against issues of great national importance.

Well, for that matter, there are lots of senators and congressmen who have the same impression when they first settle down on "The Hill." But they learn—and oh, how quickly.

Once, after a senator from one of the smaller states had made an unusually good speech on a question of import at the moment, Jim Watson was asked what he thought of it.

"Why, blazes," snotted the Indiana senator, "there are forty men in the chamber capable of making just as good a speech if they had the time —— has. Most of us get more letters from our constituents in one day than he gets in a month."

It never fails to be interesting to see a newcomer go about the task of learning the ropes—how quickly he drops his belligerent attitude and becomes tactful and patient.

There comes to mind an incident during the last congress—when a freshman Republican senator learned his lesson. It is typical of what happens every day.

He had a local bill, a minor affair, involving a small amount of money, which had passed both the house and senate, but had been lost en route to the White House.

Repassage was necessary, so he brought it up one day. Then he moved to take it up, but the vice president said he was out of order.

The fact that he was peeved could be seen clearly. An old-timer, noting this, went into a whispered consultation with him. So, biding his time, he succeeded in again getting the floor. But this time from a senator on the Democratic side came the flat warning that he would object to passage at that time of any appropriation bill.

However, the freshman senator held the floor, yielding graciously to every senator who asked. This went on for quite a while.

Finally a Democrat popped up with a small bill which had a money angle. The Democrat who had objected previously didn't want to block his colleague's bill, and could not consistently oppose the newcomer's.

So, a few minutes later, his bill sailed through.

Patience and tact, plus a knowledge of the ways of the senate, had won where force had failed.

The Old Canal Packet.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The common freight canal boats were no more ornamental than the freight cars of today, but those intended for passenger service were constructed with some attention to consideration of beauty. Even the passenger boats —"packets," as they were called—carried some freight, but it must be light and cleanly and was carried in the hold amidships.

The packets were painted white, their windows covered by shutters of green, and behind the windows hung red curtains—always red. In the bow there was a cabin for ladies. Forward of these were the kitchen and the main cabin, which served as a dining-room and also as a place for male passengers to sleep at night.

From the bow to stern there was a walk, so that the passengers could pass from one end of the boat to the other without interference with the cargo that might be carried amidships. On top of the deck, covering the captain's quarters, was the helm handle and from that point instead of a foreward bridge the boat was directed. On this deck the laundry was hung to dry. On the whole the packet thus outfitted presented a rather pretty sight as it slipped across the landscape.

Speed was more desirable in the passenger boats than in the freighters, and so two horses were usually used with the former, and after the boat got under way they were kept on the trot. In spite of this, however, because of the time necessary in negotiating the locks, progress was slow and an old time-table of a packet running between Columbus and Chillicothe shows that it took from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. to make the distance.

Nevertheless people looked upon the packet as a wonderfully luxurious and rapid means of transportation, as we did when the Pullman first was put into use.

Pierre de Fermat.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the mathematical geniuses of his although not a mathematician by profes was Pierre de Fermat. He was born in louse, France, in the year 1595, and died i same city in 1665. Singularly little is kn of his career. He would work out intere problems and send them in letters to friends. He would follow out untrodden p in the study of numbers, of geometry, of calculus, and propose difficult problems t solved. Perhaps the greatest "teaser" in history of mathematics is the theorem, kn as Fermat's theorem, which yet remains solved, although solutions have been attem by some of the greatest mathematicians s Fermat's day.

In the period during which Fermat f ished men of great intellect often had ma matical study as an avocation. This was case with not a few distinguished figure public life. As we learn from the "Boo Popular Science," the celebrated astrono Helvetius, was a senator of Danzig. The g pensionary of Holland, Jan de Witt, wa profound geometer. Florimond de Bea whom Descartes placed in the first rank mathematicians of his time, was leader of presidial of Blois. Fermat himself, in the liament of Toulouse, where he became cou or in 1631, was looked upon as the profoun lawyer of his day.

Fermat owed his first interest in mathe ics to a famous work on arithmetic by phantus. His attention was caught by translation of this work made by Bachet. mat had not received any particular trai in mathematics, and never displayed any terest in the subject until he was past th Among his correspondents, to whom he w regarding his mathematical discoveries, Pascal and Descartes.

It is unfortunate for posterity that he so little pains to make enduring record of discoveries. Some times he would jot proofs down on the margin of books. M frequently he would merely record the theo he had discovered without giving any proo them whatsoever. He was the soul of m esty, and never published any of his writ He came in time to be recognized by ma maticians as the founder of a great branch mathematics, known as the "Theory of N bers." In 1843 the legislative chambers France voted the sum of 15,000 francs to p lish a collected edition of his writings; but some reason the proposal was not then car out. Almost half a century later his writ were published by Tannery and Henry un the auspices of the French minister of pu instruction.

It will probably never be known how m discoveries Fermat made. He discovered simpler method of quadrating parabolas t that of Archimedes; and anticipated the ferential calculus of Newton and Leibniz his study of maxima and minima. He m important contributions to the theory of p ability; and shares with Descartes the ho of discovering the idea of analytic geome He was probably the greatest proposer solver of difficult problems of the history mathematics. — Copyright, 1930, Internatio Feature Service, Inc.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Tuesday. There was a frost last night, and the beans in the fence were all white with it when I had let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth, and that is what makes fur good this time of year, because the animals are putting on their winter clothes. We were talking about it this morning, and I asted my father why trees don't put on more leaves in the winter time instead of shaking them all off.

He said in olden times, when Adam and Eve were on earth, people wore leaves for clothes and the trees got so used to having their leaves stripped off that they got in the habit of shedding them. I never thought of that. I asted him what a Mexican dog does, and he said it has its bark in the winter time. Then my mother said that when she was young men all grew whiskers in the winter time to keep their throats warm, and my grandfather said what they really grew whiskers for was to hide the neckties they knew their female relations would give them for Christmas, like they used to wear boots to hide their socks. My ant said she thought they wore whiskers to make them look like goats. So then I grabbed my hat and went before I got blamed for starting something.

Before we went to take the cows out I helped my grandfather carry the bassburner out of the barn into the yard so he could get the rust off and polish it before he took it in the house. Then we went to the pasture and Banty asted Feeble if she would like to see a skunk, and she asted him if he was going to give her his picture, and we all hoorawed him. But we went out to where we had seen the skunks, and one of the big ones was walking around by the patch of weeds. Frenchy said his father told him he might take the rifle and see if he could get them Saturday. He said he would let me carry it for him but he would do the shooting. He is a cracked shot. Banty said maybe he could get his father's auto. His father has got the job painting the new house, and he goes over there every day and follows the carpenters around and dabs paint on the boards as soon as they get them nailed up.

Tom, the fella I almost licked because of what was written in my geograph, and that I would of licked if he hadnt supprized me with a punch in the face, wanted to be one of our bunch, and Banty said anyone who wanted to be in our bunch had to fight me, and Tom said that was easy, so we went together and I landed my patent punch and he clunch to save himself, and he said he had enough just as the teacher got to us. She said she was teaching school not taming wildcats. I was glad he gave up; because one of us had to.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday Oct. 15

THE planetary operations for this day seem to make for a most aggressive campaign directed toward achieving the goal of high ambitions. There will be a fine impetus to make bold strokes toward this end, but this may be somewhat stultified by indulgence in tempestuous and headlong actions. With proper deliberation and conservative manipulation all affairs should be blessed by increase, advancement and gratifying fruition to hopes and wishes, but be careful if in the employment of others.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which high hopes and aspirations may meet splendid fulfilment, attended by increase of finances, personal promotion or preferment and general prosperity and happiness. But these should not be imperiled by rash and impetuous moves and the employment should be safeguarded. Be on guard against treachery. A child born on this day should have fine equipment for success, prosperity and high adventure in life. It should be resourceful and enterprising as well as popular and important.

Cooking School Note

In the cooking school conducted under the auspices of the Star in the Marion Star Auditorium, Mrs. Emily M. Lautz stresses modern methods of cooking. Naturally, then she uses and recommends CRISCO, the modern shortening.

Where Mark Twain breakfasted at 3 P. M.!

WHEN Mark Twain, the American humorist, lived in New York, he used to wander out of his house on Ninth Street and Fifth Avenue at mid-afternoon for his BREAKFAST. This he ate in a certain French hotel nearby which is even now a gathering place for epicures.

Its dining room, still becurtained in Nottingham lace, has looked out over the avenue for more than 80 years. Not long ago I, too, had breakfast there—but not at 3 in the afternoon! And, my dear good reader, if the immortal Mark Twain had ever eaten such pineapple fritters and bacon, I don't believe he would ever have waited so long for them. Those slivers of pineapple simply swooned in a delicate batter fried to a honey-brown crunchiness.

I've found the recipe for you. You can deep-fry them in the French fashion, in your own apartment for Sunday morning breakfast, if you like. Crisco is so fresh-tasting and non-smoking that no frying odors ever linger around to offend early afternoon guests. They can be used, too, as an accompaniment for other meat courses for other meals, or as a dessert by themselves.

Other fruit than pineapple can be substituted in the batter I'm giving you but I wouldn't risk substituting another fat. For Crisco is the only fat I know of that allows the real flavor of any food cooked with it, or in it, to assert its individuality. If you taste Crisco, yourself, just as it comes from the can, you can readily see how a fat so fresh flavored will preserve the delicacy of your most subtle foods. WINIFRED S. CARTER

PINEAPPLE FRITTERS

1 cup flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1¼ cups canned pineapple cut in slivers
½ cup pineapple juice
1 tablespoon melted Crisco
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg (beaten)
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Add pineapple juice, lemon juice, well-beaten egg and Crisco. Mix well. Then stir in pineapple. Drop by tablespoonfuls into deep hot Crisco (360° to 375° F. or when inch cube of bread browns in 60 seconds). Fry to golden brown (about 2 minutes). Drain on unglazed paper. Dust with powdered sugar to serve as dessert. Serve plain with meat.

SUNDAY SUPPER CREAMED EGGS

6 hard cooked eggs — 6 slices of toast

Save out 2 egg yolks. Slice remainder of eggs thin and add gently to this cream sauce (mix well 2 tablespoons Crisco with 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped onion. Then add gradually 2 cups hot milk and stir over a slow fire. Cook till thick. Then add 1 tablespoon chopped parsley). Arrange toast on hot platter. Pour creamed eggs over toast. Press 2 egg yolks through a sieve and sprinkle over top for a garnish.

ALL MEASUREMENTS LEVEL. Recipes tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Co. ©1930, P. & G. Co.

Taste Crisco—then any other shortening. Crisco's sweet, fresh flavor will tell you why things made with Crisco taste so much better.

P-TA. GROUPS PLAN MEETINGS

School Authorirties To Explain Three-Mill Levy in Talks This Month.

A series of meetings of the City Parent-Teacher association, for the purpose of discussing the three-mill levy to come before the voters this fall, has been called by Mrs. Katherine Dennig Smith, president of the association.

George A. Bowman, superintendent of schools, F. C. Gegenheimer, president of the board of education, and Hector S. Young, clerk of the board of education, address the meetings, three of which were held last week, one last night and one tonight, together with a schedule of meetings for the remainder of the month.

In their talks to the members of the association and any friends who may wish to attend, the speakers explain to their audiences that the three-mill levy is not a new levy, but an extension of the present levy. The levy provides about 40 per cent of the school budget, those interested in the continuation of the tax say.

The board of education hopes that many citizens who are not parents of children in school may find it possible to attend the meetings and hear the discussions.

Pearl, Glenwood and Mark schools specially invite the parents and interested citizens to attend their meetings and inspect the remodeled buildings.

Last night Mr. Gegenheimer addressed a meeting of the Vernon Heights association and tonight the Davids street group is holding a meeting at which Mr. Bowman will speak. Last week Mr. Young addressed the North Main and Forest Lawn association and Mr. Bowman talked to the members of the Greenwood association. To date, the speakers have reported enthusiastic meetings, with large attendance and great interest shown in the matter which is to come before the public in November.

The schedule for meetings at various buildings over the city for the remainder of the month is as follows:

Oct. 15, Glenwood; Oct. 16, Olney; Oct. 17, Pearl and Oak; Oct. 21, State; Oct 23, Oakland Heights; Oct. 24, Central Junior; Oct. 27, Slifer; Oct. 28, Mark.

The meetings are held at 7:30 p. m. in the buildings given in the schedule.

Rotary club will be addressed today and Thursday one of the speakers will address the Kiwanis club luncheon.

Special To The Star

PROSPECT, Oct. 14—An open church wedding was solemnized Saturday night at 7:45 o'clock at the Baptist church when Miss Henrietta Hedges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Hedges, became the bride of Carl L. Jacobs, son of Henry Jacobs. Miss Geneva Isler was maid of honor ond Cloe Russell was best man. Little David Hughes and Ruth Ellen Mounts carried baskets of flowers ahead of the bridal party. Dorothy June Hedges was ring bearer, and Misses Vera Knachel and Iva Bumgartner were ushers.

The bride's gown was of imperial blue flat crepe with accessories to match. She carried an arm bouquet of pink rosebuds tied with tulle.

Miss Isler was attired the same as the bride and carried an arm bouquet of roses.

Misses Esther Kimmel and Helen Mounts and Robert Sultzbach gave a musical recital before the ceremony, and Miss Helen Cox sang "O Promise Me," and "I Love You Truly." As the bridal party entered the church "Lohengrin's Wedding March" was played.

The single ring ceremony was read by Rev. A. R. Woodworth of Galion and he was assisted by Rev. John Middlemiss before an altar banked with ferns and garden flowers.

Immediately following the wedding a reception for the bridal party and out of town relatives was given at the home of the bride's parents west of town.

After a short wedding trip they will be at home on the Jacobs' farm north of Prospect.

MUSEUM GETS SACRED RELICS

Fragment of True Cross Listed in Purchase for Cleveland Collection.

By United Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 14—A fragment of the True Cross, the cross on which Jesus was crucified, is now in the Cleveland Museum of Art.

This was revealed for the first time yesterday by William M. Milliken, the new director of the museum.

The sacred relic is contained in the paten of St. Bernward, one of the six rare are objects which Milliken purchased in Europe this summer when the famous Guelf treasury was offered for sale.

The paten and the other purchases are now in the museum. Milliken said, however, that it would take until Nov. 1 to unpack them and put them on exhibition.

82 Objects in Collection

The Guelf treasury consisted of 82 objects, the sacred relics of the Cathedral of St. Blasius at Brunswick and was until this summer in the possession of the ducal house of Brunswick-Lunenburg. The entire treasury was offered for sale at $10,000,000 and when no buyers were forthcoming, objects were offered separately.

Milliken, by arriving on the scene during the first week of the treasury's exhibition at the Staedel institute in Frankfort-am-Main was able to buy the rarest objects in it.

"We find the fragment of the true cross catalogued as such in 1482," Milliken said today.

"It was brought back from Jerusalem by the Duke Henry the Lion, the most famous of the Guelf dukes during the crusades of the 12th century.

"According to history, the true cross was recovered in the third century by St. Helena, the mother of Constantine who ruled over the Byzantine empire. St. Helena is supposed to have found the true cross in Jerusalem."

Made in 12th Century

A paten is a plate of shallow dish used in the Catholic church service for the eucharistic bread. The paten of St. Bernward was made by a German craftsman in the 12th century. It is mounted at the center of an elaborate monstrance or stand of 14th century production.

The relic of the True Cross, two tiny bits of wood fashioned into the shape of a cross, is contained above the paten between two little circular windows of rock crystal, thus making the relic visible from either side of the monstrance.

Milliken said the purchase of the six objects from the Guelf treasure has made the Cleveland museum the talk of Europe.

"In quality, our medieval collection now ranks with that of the Metropolitan Museum of New York," he said.

Three Cold Facts

Of vital interest to every citizen

1. The University of North Carolina recently made an investigation of retail food prices in Durham, N. C., a typical American city. It found that chain store grocery prices of advertised goods were 13.79 cents in the dollar lower than prices in other stores.

2. The University of Kentucky announced a few days later that it had made a retail price study of all sorts of food in Lexington, Ky., another typical city. It found food prices in chain store groceries were 14.03 cents in the dollar lower than prices in other stores.

3. The average American family spends for food between $600 and $800 a year, according to estimates of the best known authorities. This means that the average family buying its food at chain stores saves from $84 to $112 a year.

Customers of A&P knew these facts before these impartial investigations were made. It is in the public interest that everyone should know them.

MILL WORKER BENEFITED

Picked Up After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Towanda, Pa.—"I was working in a silk mill and got so tired and rundown that I weighed only 89 pounds. I was not well enough to do my work. As soon as I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to pick up. After being married for thirteen years, I had a baby boy and the next year I had another boy who now weighs 37 pounds and is healthy as a bear. The Vegetable Compound has helped me in a dozen ways and I hope others will try it too." —Mrs. C. B. Jonsson, Webb Street, R. D. 9B, Towanda, Pennsylvania.

Ohio Boy is Rewarded

WHEN children are weak and run-down, they are easy prey to colds or children's diseases. So it is never wise to neglect those weakening and depressing symptoms, such as bad breath, coated tongue, fretfulness, feverishness, biliousness, lack of energy and appetite, etc.

Nine times out of ten these things point to one trouble—constipation. Mothers all around you are coming right out in public to tell how their children are being relieved of this trouble by California Fig Syrup.

Mrs. John Gundelach, 1316 East 88th St., Cleveland, says: "I read a lot about California Fig Syrup so I knew what to give Billie when I saw by his bad breath and coated tongue that he was constipated.

"He has been more than rewarded for taking Fig Syrup. It made him a well, happy boy promptly. He never complains of any symptoms of constipation now."

She was crazy! Of course she ... marry him! Hard upon ... reassuring reflection, came ... with an incoherent ac... count of some misunderstanding or other. . . .

"What's it all about?" murmured Lester. "What doesn't poor old Socks understand?"

Lytton re-explained

"Damn' funny!" said Lester.

"It probably does strike you as humorous," returned Lytton, "but to me it seems profoundly tragic and profoundly—embarrassing."

"I don't follow you. How can Socks possibly have fallen in love with Miss Ellesmore if he's never seen her? And anyway, if he has, he'll fade out of the picture when he hears she's going to marry me"

Lytton tried again.

"I need your cooperation, Broon," he said with exemplary self-control. "Your brother is in a difficult and dangerous nervous condition. He won't rest. He won't let me prescribe for him. He doesn't you see, realize his blindness yet. When he does—well, I'm watching for collapse."

"Poor old Socks! Too bad your treatment took the wrong turning, wasn't it?"

Lytton swallowed hard.

"I want you to leave your brother in ignorance of his mistake," he brought out. "Let him think—what he thinks. At any rate, for some time. I am going soon to see Miss Ellesmore and see how the land lies. In the meantime, I'd like your permission to find out which of the servants here know her as a nurse and to ask them to say nothing if she comes here again as your brother's—friend."

"You sound—" said Lester staring—"as though you thought Ha—Miss Ellesmore has fallen in love with old Socks'"

"I saw them together"

The color mounted slowly to Lester's face.

"I'll bet you she was only being pleasant to him on my account," he blustered. "We need his consent before we can get married, you know."

"We'll leave it at this, Broon. I'll see that Miss Ellesmore gets out of Grannock's life as quickly and quietly as is safe. But no one is to explain her to him—no one—until I give the word. Is that clear? Frankly, I fear for his reason if he is given the truth just now. And don't forget this," he added, as a parting thrust, "if his reason is affected he won't be left in charge of your affairs. Your mother named others in her will, I remember, who were to act if your mother could not"

"I wasn't thinking of butting into Socks' affairs if you say not," protested Lester. Nevertheless, when the doctor had departed for his interview with Hallie, he left in Lester's mind a strong recollection of the trap-mouthed lawyer and the smug cleric who would take Socks' place as censors of Lester's matrimonial choice . . . No, Lester would do nothing to upset his brother's mental balance. Not yet, anyhow.

Lester returned to thoughts of Hallie Something in Lytton's manner had rammed home the astounding truth that Hallie, loved by a man as beautiful as a young god and rich and sought after, yet preferred his blind and impoverished and elder brother. . . .

It was early evening. It occurred to him that he had not seen his brother since the disaster to his eyes and that Lytton had not specifically forbidden a visit. It would not be a bad idea to present himself in the study.

He left the drawing-room in which he had been lounging most of the day and sauntered across the hall Garfield, the butler, was coming from the study and, to Lester's faint contempt, had tears in his eyes He removed them and apologized

"Such a terrible thing this about Mr. Grannock's blindness, sir. After all our hopes." He dropped his voice to a whisper. "And all due, I'm given to understand to a mis, take on the part of the—the night-nurse"

Evidently, thought Lester, Lytton had had the sense to leave the full story untold to the staff.

"And I'm sure," continued Garfield, "I should be the last to disturb Mr. Grannock in any little, one might say, delusion—that he may have about the young lady . . . I trust you're feeling better today ,sir?"

"Got a head Garbage. Got a rotten head But I see you've removed that old stand that used to be in the corner over there. That's making me feel better, a whole lot better"

"I'm afraid you must have stumbled against that yourself, sir, last night when you came in. You don't recall a crash of any kind, sir? The plant-stand was in pieces this morning I'm afraid Mr. Grannock will be displeased when he sees it."

"When," echoed Lester, meaningly.

Garfield glanced at him — the glance he might have given to a defective but lovable child. Lester passed on and into the corridor that would bring him to the study. How short it was! He remembered carrying Hallie along it — only in the other direction—last night and fearing that the distance would be too great for his strength

And then a curious thing happened to Lester Broon. It was given to him to believe that along this corridor, one day, he would walk to his doom. The door at the end—the door of the study—would open for him and shut behind him—and that would be all. The shutting of the door would be the last sound his ears would hold and the tunnel of the corridor would be the last picture stamped upon his fading mind.

He stopped in his stride He was trembling, sweating, sick. His eyes were upon the door and it was opening He felt that he was going to scream. But instead of screaming he was laughing.

"Oh, please, Mr. Broon," snapped Nurse Casey. She had come softly through the study door and now barred his passage. "Mr. Grannock is dozing and he must be allowed to rest. Dr. Lytton was very particular about rest."

Lester went on laughing, but softly. Lord, what a fright this dumpy, earnest little creature had given him! At least, he supposed it was her fiddling with the door that had started it all.

"It won't disturb my brother if I just have a look at him," he suggested. He took out his handkerchief and passed it over his face. "Haven't seen him for a couple of days."

"Mr. Grannock aked for you yesterday but you had gone in town" Nurse Casey still refused to meet his smile or to step aside; indeed her voice was definitely hostile. "My instructions are to allow Mr Grannock no visitors," she added

"And you're in charge of him are you?"

"Yes, Mr. Broon I'm in charge of him all day and—now that there is no night-nurse—all inght"

The black mood grew in Lester. So this fat little fool knew the origin of all that scandal about Hallie! His smile grew more serene.

"'Fraid I shall be turning in early tonight," he said and, as the tears sprang to her eyes at the insult and the blood scorched her face, he pushed her gently aside and went on into the study.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Dicky May Go Too Far in His Baiting

AT my entreaty, which made me feel the champion hypocrite of all time, Mr. Veritzen's month relaxed into a smile and he bowed from the waist.

"I could refuse no request of yours," he said impressively, and Dicky slapped him on the shoulder so heartily that my dignified employer almost lost his balance. My husband's face was guileless and beaming as the elder man straightened himself with an expression in his eyes which betrayed for an instant the active dislike I suspected was his for Dicky.

"That's the ticket!" Dicky said explosively. "But, then nobody can withstand my frau when she sets out to be hospitable. That's all settled then. We shall expect you for breakfast Christmas morning."

Veritzen Accepts

"No, not for breakfast," Mr. Veritzen said decidedly. "I am not fit for human company before breakfast."

"Who is?" Dicky inquired. "But at the farmhouse Madge has a series of cages into which she drives us as soon as we arise and tosses us strips of raw meat until the first edge of our hunger is dulled. Then she lets us out for the regular breakfast. I'll have a nice little padded cage prepared for you if you'll join us."

Mr. Veritzen smiled, evidently with difficulty.

"Thank you, but I am afraid I must decline so tempting an offer But I shall be delighted to accept your invitation to dinner."

"Then we're not going to tease you any more about anything else" I said with an effort at playfulness. "Come, Dicky, you really must stop it. But I'm so glad you're coming to dinner."

"So am I!" Lillian interposed with an intuition for which I blessed her. "It isn't often my old eyes can see a spectacle like 'Sophisticated Sandy' here devouring a turkey leg, and I'm all of a twitter of anticipation. How about it, old dear? Wilt pull a wishbone mit me?"

Mr. Veritzen smiled reluctantly, but Dicky guffawed.

"If you promise to pull that stunt I'll take motion pictures of it," he said, and Mr. Veritzen's eyebrows narrowed.

Madge Stops Dicky's Raillery

"You'll also have to provide an extra turkey," I said quickly, "for Junior and Roderick have a lien on the two already scheduled."

"D'ye think I'd let a mere detail like that interfere with so wonderful a gift to posterity?" Dicky demanded, but I had been edging away so that for an instant I was behind Mr. Veritzen and facing Dicky, and I shook my head vehemently in a warning that he had gone far enough in raillery.

His face did not change, but he altered his tone immediately.

"All this talk of wishbones and turkey legs makes me hungry," he said. "When do we eat?"

"Again?" Lillian demanded incredulously, playing up. "Dicky, you're hollow."

"Admitted!" he said with a little bow. "But that doesn't answer my question."

I looked at the clock on a bracket almost hidden by flowers.

"In an hour Mr. Seibel will have the buffet supper in readiness, I told him

"But what am I to do until then?" he asked, and I saw that Mr. Veritzen's eyebrows had unknitted themselves, and that the tenseness of the moment before was over.

"Pull your belt together," admonished Lillian. "It would hurt you to bant a bit," she added cruelly, and Dicky flushed ever so slightly. There is no possible excuse for calling Dicky stout, but he is unduly sensitive over the slight increase in weight which has been his for the last year or two

"Let's leave 'em, Veritzen," Dicky said, putting his hand on the other man's arm. "They're cold and cruel. They could laugh while a fellow perished before their eyes with starvation. I've seven-eighths of a notion to beat it to a quick lunch joint I know."

He marched Mr. Veritzen away, still grumbling audibly, and Lillian caught in my hand and squeezed it convulsively.

"Don't look at me or I shall explode," she begged, her voice choked with laughter. "Did you ever see anything equal to the way the Dicky-bird flayed old Phil and trussed him up ready for roasting? And not a word that Veritzen could object to. Oh, boy! You don't see anything as neat as that but once in a lifetime"

Dicky Solves Madge's Problem

"He certainly solved a problem for me," I said. "I was so afraid Mr Veritzen would think I was inviting him to Christmas dinner because—"

"Because you wanted him," Lillian finished dryly. "Yes, that might have been an inference as well as the other one—that Dicky didn't. But now, thanks to your clever husband he hasn't a picture in his mind except that of an obedident wife docilely echoing her husband's enthusiastic invitation for hrisCtmas dinner. And he's the most puzzled old hound dog in the whole island of Manhattan. But Hist! also Avast! What have we here? My question's answered about Mary!"

Don't tell a man he has made a fool of himself; he almost always knows it.

"Girls, Use More Cosmetics," Is Advice of Beauty Culture Expert

By International News Service

DENVER—Girls make a mistake when they try "to be your age."

This is the advice for girls from 18 to 80 by no less an authority than Mildred L. Haas, of Long Beach, Calif., president of the All-American Beauty Culture association, in Denver for the national convention of the organization.

She believes, briefly, that women don't use enough makeup, that rouge is dabbed on with too little care, that soap is good for the face, that men are taking to facials, that "straggly" bobs are passe.

"The average woman does not use enough makeup," said Mrs. Haas, who has been in the beauty business 19 years. "In the majority of cases, those who do apply cosmetcis, literally throw it on without using the proper base. They damage their facial pores.

"Rouge, for instance, should not be dabbed on in a little circle; it should go in the little triangle formed by an imaginery line running from the corner of the eye to the center of the ear, and down to a point about two inches below. After putting on the rouge, it should be toned down by lightly rubbing it upward, not down."

Women who boast of using no soap on their faces fall to get a vote of approval from Mrs. Haas.

"Look at the skin on your body," she explained. "It's just like that on your face. When you take a bath, you use plain old soap and water. Soap and water never have injured men's faces, and I believe men have better looking complexions than women!"

Men are going in for facials, marcels and light face liftings in surprising numbers, according to Mrs. Haas. So great has been the influx of men into beauty shops, that Mrs. Haas is going to open a beauty shop for men only. Men will be employed as operators.

Women are growing more careful about their looks all the time, the veteran beauty operator said. Powders are being blended to match the individual skin and rouge and lipstick are taking more natural colors. Dark powders are "out," she declared.

Yellow, not too near orange, and red, not too near light tomato color, are the most attractive colors for brunettes, she said. Blondes look best in soft pastel shades, with blue most desirable.

Hair should be worn either long or closely bobbed, in her opinion; the "straggly" bob that comes in between is out.

"There is less artificiality in dress and makeup than ever before," Mrs. Haas stated. "Women are smart looking without resorting to freakish modes, nowadays. The western women are practically setting their own styles now. They are not so entirely dependent upon the whims of the east."

Too much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine, prescribed by doctors for conditions due to excess acid. It is always a liquid; it cannot be made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips' and the word genuine in red.

PRESIDENTS IN LAST HOME STAND

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

STANDINGS in the N. C. O. league are in somewhat of a muddle as a result of the tie game Saturday between Galion and Mansfield. The victory of Ashland over Harding gives the former the honor of holding the top rung of the scholastic league for a week at least. The Ashland team has not been tied or defeated but it has played but a single game. This week the Starnmen may find the going more difficult against the Bucyrus eleven.

Galion and Mansfield are deadlocked for second place and Bucyrus and Harding are deadlocked for the last step in the ladder. Shelby does not get its name included in the standings until it meets Galion this Saturday. As yet the Whippets have not met any league opposition.

Harding may by some hook or crook get shoved into a tie for last place before this next week-end becomes history. The local team does not meet a league foe so if Bucyrus loses both of them will be fighting for the cellar when Marion meets the Bucktown boys next week-end. Shelby wont be in last place no matter what happens in its game with Galion. Harding has lost two and as much as we'd like to we can't figure any way by which the Whippets can catch up with Harding's record of two losses in two starts when it plays but a single game this week.

DESPITE the fact that Mansfield was held to a scoreless tie by Galion in last Saturday's battle we are still naming the Murphymen to repeat for the championship of the N. C. O. circuit for the second consecutive year. Such a fact, if it is a fact, probably will not give anyone, especially in Marion any particularly light hearted feelings but they don't award championships on what rivals think about each other. If they did, Ohio State wouldn't bother to play Michigan this Saturday.

Mansfield has several things in its favor for the title again this year. The biggest thing though is the team. With three individuals such as Brandon, McKinney and Luckie congregated on the same team any school would have a great chance to cop the hunting in this league. Aside from the team, which is probably better than any in the league, Mansfield has figured out four itself a schedule which promises to aid materially in winning the championship. The playing list of opponents is so arranged that a real tough game is generally either preceded or followed by a warm-up contest. Before Mansfield wins the gonfalon though it must dispose of Marion. On the record of these two teams so far this year such a statement might look to be more of a joke than anything else. It should be but most anything may happen when those two outfits lock horns.

SINGER FIGHTS TONIGHT

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 14—Al Singer, lightweight champion of the world, will display his talent for the first time in Chicago and the middlewest, tonight in the stadium, in a ten round non-title engagement with Eddie Mack of Denver.

Donie Bush, manager of the White Sox, thinks the American league is superior in pitchers, the National league in infields and the leagues even on outfields.

VETERAN LINEUP TO REPRESENT FINDLAY IN FRIDAY'S BATTLE

Hancock County Gridders Boast Versatile Running Attack and Aerial Game.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

HARDING High school will be bucking a veteran and flashy grid combination Friday afternoon when the Findlay high team journeys to Marion to do battle with the Presidents. The game will mark the final home stand of the local team for this season. There are four more games on the Harding schedule for the year, all away from home. Three of the remaining four are league games with Shelby, Bucyrus and Mansfield offering the resistance while the final start will be in Springfield against the high school team of that city.

Whether or not Harding is going to be able to turn in a creditable performance against the Findlay aggregation will more than likely depend to a large extent on the amount of improvement they show over play of former games this year. Findlay may or may not have a stronger team than any Marion has faced this season but one thing is certain. It will be a team that will test the defense of the locals in a very thorough manner.

Have Scored 160 Points

Boasting a running and passing attack that so far this season has netted 160 points Findlay will be hard to stop. While the offense has battered many lines of more strength than Harding's into submission the defense has not proved impregnable if points scored against the team in three games are any criterion. While Findlay has run up the huge total of 160 points in a quartet of games the opponents have scored 34. Of these 34 however a large majority have been scored off the second and third stringers.

Findlay will outweigh Harding, both on the line and in the backfield. The forward wall of the invaders will average around 175 pounds and the backfield around 160. The team is being touted by Findlay partisans as the greatest outfit to represent Findlay since the days of the unbeaten squad of 1925.

Of the games played this year Findlay has won three and lost one. The only setback came at the hands of the Columbus South team, 8-7. The victories were recorded over Upper Sandusky, 86-0; Bowling Green, 35-13, and Fremont, 32-13.

From Newsboy to Jockey in Three Months' Time

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 14—Jockey Eugene James, 17, former Louisville newsboy, within a little more than three months has developed into the riding sensation of the west and now has a record of 72 winners during his brief career.

James rode three winners at Churchill Downs yesterday, bringing his total for the meet to 15. He rode his first winner at Latonia July 11.

The young jockey was selling papers last February when he entered the employ of Luther Goose.

Horsemen say he uses his hands well, but wins most of his races by "heady" riding—holding his mount in reserve until the stretch then making his challenge and disposing of the tiring pacemakers.

CLASH AGAIN

Fesler and Hudson Meet in Ohio-Michigan Game

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 14—When Ohio State clashes here Saturday afternoon against its oldest western conference rival, Michigan two stars who opposed each other annually in their high school days will be pitted against each other

They are Wesley Fesler, the Buckeyes' brilliant end, and Roy "Sally" Hudson, star halfback of the Wolverines.

Fesler, as a high school athlete at Youngstown South, can well remember the brilliant running, passing and punting of Hudson, for three years the mainstay of the Girard, O., High school grid team. Girard and the Youngstown school are ancient rivals.

N. Y. Yankees To Sign M'Carthy as 1931 Pilot

BY BILL CORUM
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—Marse Joe McCarthy, a coal-black-eyed, square-set alert gentleman from Buffalo's old fourth ward, is due to be named manager of our Yankees this afternoon. What! You don't mean to tell me you have heard it before! All right. Even if it isn't new, it's clean.

McCarthy is a hustler. He knows men and baseball. He comes here grimly determined to win a pennant next year so he can wave it in the astonished faces of the Messrs. William Wrigley and Veeck, of the Chi Cubs.

You might even say he comes fired with determination from Chicago. There's no need beating about the bush. That's what happened to him out there. He was fired. And did he burn!

Which is why he turned down Bobbie Quinn in Boston. He wanted to score at first asking wherever he went. And an optimist was never made who could kid himself into believing that he could win a pennant in one year with Red Sox.

A Different Story

It is quite different with the Rupert Riflers. Bob Shawkey, who did a good job under difficulties, has started a new framework on the solid foundation left by Huggins. The late little Miller knew full well his old invincible Yanks had gone to pot and was building for the future when he died.

Little Miller also knew ball players as few men have known them. "Three fingered" Brown could count on one hand the mistakes Huggins made in picking young players.

Thus Joe stands at least a fighting chance of crashing through in 1931 . . . and you can step out and bet all the near-beer in Colonel Jack's brewery that Joe will be trying. There is no way of knowing whether he will make the riffle. But we do know this—any ball club he manages will hustle. It's the only way McCarthy knows to play the game.

Two Stellar Backs

Captain Dick Gentle of Pennsylvania; a triple threat man who can do anything which he is called upon to attempt in a football way just a little bit better than his opponent. Gentle's opposition has often been misled into thinking he might be just what his name implies—that is before the game. After the game is over and Dick has bowled over everyone on the opposing lineup at least two or three times in a manner that makes known his presence in a very emphatic manner the "boys on the other team" think the Gentle family either don't know what their name means or else are nothing short of liars.

Hank Bruder of Northwestern, the prize tough luck package of big time football, classed as the greatest back in football by his coach Dick Hanley, is another specimen of grid prowess who always gives the opposing linemen and backs plenty of trouble during the course of any ordinary game. Bruder is again victim of his jinx, this time with smallpox but he may get in the game in November long enough to make it tough for some Big Ten championship aspirants

EASTERN TEAMS TO ENGAGE IN DOMESTIC DISPUTES SATURDAY

Army-Harvard Fray Tops Coastal Grid Card; Yale Meets Brown.

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—Major eastern football teams forget all about intersectional rivalries this week and settle down to the serious business of settling a few domestic disputes.

Topping the section's program will be the 16th battle between Harvard and Army at Harvard stadium. Neither yet has been extended and both have power aplenty in backfield and line. Harvard won the first 13 games played with Army but the Cadets broke the charm in 1928 and then battled to a spectacular 20-20 tie last year.

The Yale-Brown feud will be renewed in the Yale bowl. Of 35 games played since 1893, Yale has won 29, lost four and tied two. Brown has won in 1926 and; despite of 7-0 victory over Princeton, the odds are against them again this week.

Cornell's high-scoring machine will seek its fifth victory in 39 years over Princeton and chances are all in favor of it.

Fordham, which nosed out Boston college yesterday, 3-0, takes on an old foe in Holy Cross on Saturday at Worcester.

Many other eastern feuds are up for decision. Lou Little's Columbia outfit meets Dartmouth at Hanover with the latter favored. Pittsburgh invades New York state to meet Syracuse with the result a toss-up. Other outstanding duels involve Villanova and Boston college; Lafayette and Penn State; Lehigh and Gettysburg; Temple and Washington and Jefferson; and Georgetown and Western Maryland.

MAY SHIFT SCENE

Consider Playing Wildcat-Notre Battle on Soldier Field.

By International News Service

CHICAGO, Oct. 14—A plan whereby Notre Dame's football team would meet Northwestern at Soldier field instead of at Dyche stadium Evanston, on November 22 that the extra proceeds might go to charity was being considered today by both institutions.

Soldier Field stadium has a possible capacity of 110,000 persons whereas Dyche stadium where the game is scheduled to be played seats but 55,000. Proceeds from the difference would go to three Chicago charities for use among the unemployed this winter.

WILDCATS WEAKENED FOR ILLINOIS BATTLE

Inexperienced Members of Purple Squad May Star Against Zuppke Team.

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Oct. 14—A number of young men seeking football glory at Northwestern, who had little expectation of starting games for a year or so, may find themselves classed as regulars Saturday.

Every member of the varsity and freshmen squads was vaccinated for smallpox yesterday, because of association with Captain Hank Bruder who is suffering mildly with the malady, and doctors ordered that no strenuous exercise be taken until it is determined if the vaccinations "take."

Coach Dick Hanley has no more idea than anyone else who will be affected by the treatment, and said that every man who did not own a sore arm Saturday, was likely to play against Illinois. He called off rough workouts for all week.

The unexpected trouble in the Northwestern camp of course was encouraging to the Illini, who see a chance of upsetting the Wildcat hope for a Big Ten title. Illinois got through the Butler game in excellent shape.

Rockne Fears Carnegie

Knute Rockne proved he was not fooling when he said Carnegie Tech was his biggest worry, by sending the Notre Dame regulars through a hard two hours of work yesterday. Rockne usually rests the regulars and shock troops on Monday, but they started the week with a mid-week type of practice. The return of Larry Mullins, number one fullback, brought the Irish to full power.

Wisconsin and Chicago prepared for intersectional foemen, with opposite feelings. The Badgers, following their overwhelming triumph over Chicago Saturday, began organizing against the invasion of Pennsylvania, in an almost confident frame of mind. At Chicago, however, only A. A. Stagg, Sr., failed to be down-cast over the Wisconsin defeat, and the prospect of facing Florida's Alligators.

BULLDOG TOUCHDOWN IS RULED ILLEGAL

Georgia Should Have Won Game with Yale 18-7 Instead of 18-14.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 14— Georgia beat Yale by a score of 18-14 but under the rules the final count should have been 18-7. Yale's second touchdown was scored on an illegal play but no one noticed it for 24 hours.

On the play in question, Yale kicked off. The ball landed in the arms of Kelly, Georgia back, who ran a few steps before he was hit hard by captain Vincent of Yale. The ball bounded from his arms into the hands of Barres of Yale who dashed over the goal line.

There was no protest from the Georgians when the touchdown was allowed but rule 6, governing the kickoff, says:

"If the ball is recovered by a player of the receiving team before it is declared dead, he may run with it, pass it backward or kick it; if the ball is recovered by a player of the kicking team, the ball is dead at the point of recovery."

Referee W. T. Hallorran of Providence, who handled the game, said the officials had concurred in their opinion that the touchdown was legal. He said the idea of the loose ball being called an ordinary fumble was not considered by the officials since the ball did not touch the ground

Wrigley Adds Sweetland to Cub Hurling Staff

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 14—The latest flourish of William Wrigley's checkbook has made Lester Sweetland, a left-handed pitcher, a member of the Cubs, and other flourishes, calculated to bring the National league championship back to Chicago, may be expected soon. President William L. Veeck of the club, yesterday announced the purchase of Sweetland from the Philadelphia Nationals, for whom the southpaw worked during the past three seasons. The deal was strictly cash.

In announcing the purchase of Sweetland, who won six games and lost 15, according to unofficial figures for 1930, Veeck said the deal was "the first move toward bolstering up the pitching staff."

The name of Pinky Whitney, Philly third baseman, has been mentioned in connection with the Cub strengthening plans.

34 ROUNDS ON CARD

Five bouts good for 34 rounds of fighting if they go the limit are booked for the American Legion benefit boxing show scheduled for the armory in Findlay on Oct. 22. The main attraction will be a 10 round go between Ansel Bell and Benny Ray in the featherweight class. Other fights will bring together Dickie Mitchell and Johnny Wolfe, fly-weights; and Neil Gerlach and Howard Lask in lightweights. Preliminary bouts will match Chick Pulcheon and Young Bibler and Johnny Grouse and Kid Beckner.

FESLER ON INJURED LIST AT OHIO STATE

All-American Wingman Has Wrenched Wrist from Tilt with Purple.

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 14—Wesley Fesler, Ohio State's star end, is on the hospital list at the Buckeye football camp today, nursing a severely-wrenched wrist which he suffered in the early part of the Ohio State-Northwestern game last Saturday.

Fesler's right wrist has been placed in a plaster paris cast. The all-American flankman is expected to be in the lineup next Saturday, however, when the Bucks line up against the traditional foe, Michigan.

Another regular who is on the injured list this week is Bob Haubrich, varsity tackle, whose shoulder injury kept him out of the Northwestern tilt. He is expected to be available for the Wolverine clash, according to trainer Tucker Smith.

FOX CHASE SET FOR KILLBUCK SATURDAY

Central Ohio Sportsmen To Comb Holmes County in Week-End Hunt.

Dogs of every description will vie for honors and places at the forty-first annual Central Ohio Sportsmen's meeting and fox chase scheduled to be held in Killbuck Saturday, Oct. 18. Devotees of the chase and field sports from counties in the central district of the state are expected to be in attendance at the meeting. The event usually draws a crowd of about 500 sportsmen.

The officers of the chase scheduled for Killbuck are making plans for the entertainment of a larger crowd than ever before as interest manifested in the chase has apparently increased considerably over that of former years.

The region included in the district set for the chase is composed Holmes, Ashland, Coshocton, Wayne, Delaware, Morrow, Knox and Marion counties. The meet will be held in Holmes county because of the better facilities for fox chasing.

During the afternoon of the 18th. the dogs will be shown and judged and prizes awarded for winners of the various classes. Following this, the gathering will split in numerous groups and hold fox chases in various sections of the county.

The annual event is being sponsored by the Central Ohio Sportsmens' Association, one of the oldest if not the oldest association of its kind in the state of Ohio. It was founded in 1890.

In four years Tennessee's football team scored 975 points to 124 for its opponents.

HEAVY SALES CAUSE DROP

Accumulation of Orders Over Extended Week-End Leads to Decline in Prices.

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—Before showing any definite signs of rallying the stock market today was called upon to absorb a heavy accumulation of selling orders over the extended week-end. American Can broke 4½ points before buying orders equivalent to the week-end slump made itself effective. United States steel fell off three points to 196 on the first block of 12,000 shares and dipped to 144¾, only fractionally above the year's low price.

New weakness in the oils was in evidence as the result of reports of further price cutting in crude and refined oil. Texas Corporation and Atlantic Refining declined to the year's lowest price levels, and lower prices were also quoted for the entire standard and independent oil shares in all of the principal markets.

Though the coppers and specialties declined lower in the forenoon, the volume of stock sales at the new ranges was comparatively small and it required only moderate demand to bring about fair sized rallies.

Weakness over weak spots in the market itself rather than unfavorable developments in business was probably responsible for the bulk of the liquidation which dogged the market today. Wall Street was full of rumors of "bank support" for investment concerns and brokerage houses of various types. Weakness of the grain and cotton markets was discouraging to the bulls, but from important industrial and retail centers came reports of "business picking up."

Call money was in good supply at two per cent.

WHEAT PRICES HIT NEW LOWS

Liverpool Quotations Affect Chicago Market; Rallies Slightly Later.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 14—Sharp setbacks in Liverpool wheat quotations resulted in a decided early downturn today of all grain value here. Every delivery of wheat in Chicago touched a new low price record for the present drop. General timely rains in Australia and lower exchange rates from Argentina were bearish factors, together with cheap Canadian and Russian offerings of wheat abroad. Some complications in Chicago trading resulted from a change of rules so that dealings were both in new and old style contracts, but brokers quickly adjusted their operations to fit the altered circumstances.

Opening 1½c a bushel lower, wheat afterward recovered somewhat.

Corn started 1½@2¾c off, and soon rallied to a moderate extent.

New contracts for Chicago wheat future deliveries brought a premium of ¾ cents a bushel in many cases today, as compared with old style contracts, a reduced number of grades being specified in new contracts, a fact regarded by numerous buyers as an advantage. Meanwhile the Chicago wheat market displayed relative firmness as compared with Liverpool, where the close was 5¼ pence off since Saturday. One reason for the firmness here was talk current that as a result of prevailing low prices European buying of wheat this season may prove to be larger than has heretofore been estimated.

On the other hand, considerable notice was taken today of official reports showing wheat on farms in Kansas totals 65,000,000 bushels, against 44,000,000 a year ago. The amount of wheat on ocean passage today was also shown to be larger than either last week or last year. Grain traders continued to keep a sharp eye on stock market developments but appeared to be less guided thereby than of late. Corn and oats followed wheat.

Provisions were responsive to an upturn in hog values.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

The new crop of Florida oranges has virtually monopolized the local orange market, and has boosted the prices up to 60 and 70 cents a dozen. Ordinarily, the Florida fruit sells from 15 to 20 cents cheaper than this price. The scarcity of California oranges, which are now out of season, is responsible for the high quotations.

Decided drops in orange prices are expected late in November when the new California crop arrives.

Concord and Niagara grapes from this section of the state are off the market. Grocers have been importing baskets of grapes for Saturday specials, these coming from New York state. The grape market during the week centers around the California Tokay varieties.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 14—Resolutions dealing with the employment problem were among those adopted unanimously today at the convention of the American Federation of Labor.

The convention approved extension of the age limit for applicants for employment in federal government service beyond the limit of 45 years, a law providing that only civilian mechanics shall be employed on federal penal institutions construction work; modernization of battleships to prevent discharge of 5000 navy yard employes in face of "the most serious unemployment conditions" and favoring passage of the house bill proposing restriction of employment of [illegible] in the navy to [illegible] civil workers.

TULANE SCIENTISTS COMB JUNGLES FOR NEW FACTS ON TROPIC DISEASES

NEW ORLEANS—Tulane university's microbe hunters are back from the jungles of Panama with new secrets of tropical ills, blazing the health trail for great international highways of the future.

In three months, one in a jungle seldom penetrated by white men, they gathered data that it will take two years to compile and classify.

Some of their findings are expected to halt the ravages of tropical diseases whose path to the north will be opened in the future with construction of the proposed international highway that is to stretch from Brownsville, Tex., to the tip of the Argentine.

THE expedition was led by Dr. Ernest Carroll Faust, professor of parisitology, in charge of the department of tropical medicine in the Tulane medical school.

A veteran whose research work has taken him to China, French Indo-China and the remote Malay sections of the Philippines, he led the Tulane group to a section in Panama which is one of the few remaining tropical areas in that region not previously investigated by Rockefeller foundation men.

The Tulane men were the first group of investigators selected by the Gorgas Institute of Panama for research in tropical diseases. They examined more than 2,000 patients, captured rare specimens of reptile and animal life, and studied some of the greatest scourges of the American tropics, amoebic dysentery, malaria, worm parasites and venomous snakes.

THEY captured specimens of the deadly bushmaster, a snake that takes a heavy toll along jungle paths, and are working on an antivenom. From one specimen Dr. Faust took enough poison to kill eight men.

After two months' laboratory work under Dr. Herbert C. Clark, director of the Gorgas Memorial laboratory, the Tulane party went by steamer to Boca de Cupe, the last native village on the Tuira river in Darien province and proceeded by canoe into the malaria-infested jungle.

With Dr. Faust were Dr. William H. Martinez of New Orleans and Alberto Prieto, a Tulane medical student.

TRAINING SCHOOL SESSIONS BEGIN

Trinity Baptist Church Classes for Workers To Last All Week.

The leadership training school at Trinity Baptist church opened last night with 49 students enrolled. The first recitations started at 7 p. m. and at 7:50 the students and faculty gathered in the chapel for an assembly and worship service in charge of the pastor, Rev. Lawrence A. Wood, deacon of the school.

Seven churches were represented in the group. Rev. W. F. Lahr of Waldo Reformed church was present with a delegation of young people from his churches.

In the assembly period, it was announced that credits will be certified to the various denominational headquarters at the request of the students who complete their work at the closing meeting Friday night.

It is the desire of those in charge of the school that it be interdenominational, and that those from other churches interested in the school visit one of the sessions.

The classes open at 7 p. m. and adjourn at 9. The faculty included Mrs. O. N. Young of Lima, Rev. Charles L. Conrad, missionary at Bassein, Burman, Miss Pearl Rosser of Granville, Wilson A. Holmes of Granville and Rev. Wood, dean.

Tonight at the close of a brief devotional period, a social time has been planned. Wednesday night the class in Young People's worship will be in charge of the program. Rev. Conrad will present a series of stereopticon slides and a description of his work in Burma, at the meeting Thursday night.

"UNWISE LAW"

Cardinal Hayes Says Dry Amendment Blow to Cause of Temperance

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 14—Cardinal Patrick Hayes of New York, commenting here upon prohibition, said he considered it "unwise legislation" and a blow to the temperance movement.

Cardinal Hayes, one of the four Cardinals in the United States, arrived from Victoria enroute to California yesterday. He made known his views in discussing an address here yesterday by Bishop George Finnigan, Montana, who told a Catholic gathering drunkenness had increased under the eighteenth amendment.

He said the growing divorce rate presented an example of lack of self control. "The sense of sacrifice seems to have disappeared," he said

OBSTACLES OVERCOME AND BORIS, BULGARIAN KING, WINS PRINCESS

PRINCESS GIOVANNA — KING VICTOR — KING BORIS — PRINCESS EUDOXIA — QUEEN MARY — DUKE of SPOLETO

FOR years Europe has been agog with the quest of Boris, the bachelor King of Bulgaria, for a bride.

The 36-year-old king has at last settled the question and has become officially engaged to Princess Giovanna, the 22-year-old daughter of the King of Italy.

Royal Lovers

They have been in love for five years, and for 12 years Boris has been looking for a wife to share his throne. At least, for 12 years his people has been begging him to marry, but he never showed much interest in the matter until the youngest of the three Italian Princesses grew up.

It has been attaed that Giovanna fell in love with Boris while her hair was still down her back.

If they had been plain Mr. and Mrs. Main Street they would have been married long ago. But being the most important young people in their two countries, it was impossible for them to do as they pleased. The church had a lot to say about their matrimonial alliance, and the state had much more. Things would have been simpler if, as is customary in many royal marriages, love had not entered into the matter.

Religious Difficulties

Boris made many trips to Italy to catch a glimpse of the graceful Italian girl, and, it is rumored, to plead his case with the pope. Giovanna is a Roman Catholic, while Boris is a Greek Orthodox Catholic. That is the religious difference that became a stumbling block.

Patient Boris, combined with his strenuous efforts in keeping in hand a kingdom which had been threatening to crumble, did not have much time for love-making. Undaunted he renewed his suit again last January and made the correct overtures. He had an audience with Pope Pius XI. However, nothing came only the usual rumors.

The following month Giovanna's name was linked with Prince Nicholas of Rumania. Boris must not have liked it very much, for he immediately made it known that he was in the marriage market and that he was ready to marry Rumania's most eligible daughter, Princess Ileana.

Welcome News

Naturally, Giovanna, who had no intention of marrying Prince Nicholas, must have been upset. Possibly Mussolini did not like it so well. Suddenly Boris learned that his suit would be welcomed if he would shift it over from Rumania to Italy. Boris did. And now, after all this ado over nothing, two young people who have loved each other a long time can be married.

Through his years of struggle Boris has had by his side a faithful ally in his sister, Princess Eudoxia. She has steadfastly said that she would never wed until Boris did.

Dual Alliance

In the last dispatches from Europe came the news that Princess Eudoxia will be married to Duke Charles of Spoleto, son of Prince Aosta of Italy. The double ceremony lends a new bulwark to tottering royalty through a dual alliance between Italy and Bulgaria.

GAS WELL SHOT

Expected To Show Half Million Feet on New Lease.

UPPER SANDUSKY, Oct. 14—Expected to yield a gas pressure of a half million cubic feet, the first well on the James Feeley farm was to be shot today. The farm is located two miles north of here in a territory just being developed.

The well was put down on a lease owned by the Fair Oil Co., a concern composed of Marion, Mt. Gilead and Sycamore men.

Wrong License Plates Brings $25 Fine Here

Herbert Jones of Bucyrus was fined $25 and costs in municipal court when he pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of operating an automobile with improper license plates.

He was arrested by police while driving his Willys-Knight sedan here. Police say he was using license plates formerly used on stolen cars by a ring of Bucyrus auto thieves. The ring was recently broken up and one of the men is now in Ohio penitentiary.

NO MORE WAVING flags and lanterns on long freight trains. The engineer and conductor talk to each other by radio. This means simplified and safer operation of trains sometimes a mile long. But romance goes as railroad efficiency increases. Old trainmen and passengers remember mournfully the days when the smokestack was shaped like a hoop skirt upside down and brakemen rushed out on open platforms to turn the brakes when they heard the engineers whistle.

NOT LONG AGO, Jack, alias "Legs," Diamond went to Europe, and Germany sent him back.

Evidently "Legs" knew why he went. He is in the hospital now with many bullets and slugs from sawed-off shotguns in his body.

His clothes were found hanging in the closet of a room occupied by a young lady in the hotel in which he was shot.

Police are "grilling" the young woman, suspecting that she may have put the unfortunate "Legs" conveniently on the spot. She says, "I was always a good girl; this is just my luck." Coldly truthful reports of modern crime make Eugene Sue's "Mysteries of Paris," with his chourineur and squellette, look tame.

If a rumor about you is pleasant, but untrue, just laugh without denying it.

Two Men Fined $5 for Theft of Tire

Two colored youths were fined $5 each in municipal court yesterday following the recovery by police of a tire stolen from a Dodge roadster in the rear of the Army store on North Main street sometime during the week-end.

They are Clarence Ritchie, 19, of Patterson street, and James West, 22, of 552 Polk street. They pleaded guilty to petit larceny when arraigned.

The New and Finer

PACKARD

STANDARD EIGHT

You are paying for one - why not own it

NO new Packards of recent years have offered so many refinements and improvements as the new series Eights now on display at our showrooms.

Yet the new cars embody no radical changes—no experimental features. Last year's luxurious Packards—the finest of all fine motor cars—have simply been made finer still.

The new Packard Standard Eight, for example, offers more power through improved carburetion and manifolding—finer performance in traffic and on the hills. Longer and softer springs, together with new shock absorbers, provide still greater riding comfort.

A "short-shift" type of four-speed transmission—easy and quiet—adds to the pleasure of driving. An entirely automatic lubrication system removes the human element from daily chassis care.

Packard designed and built bodies, with shatter-proof glass, are the finest ever mounted on the Standard Eight chassis. The interiors have been refined and improved—new comforts and conveniences added. And in exterior design, the traditional and individual beauty of Packard lines has been retained, as always.

Come and see the new and finer Packard Standard Eight—or let us send one to your door for a day's trial. If you are driving a car of similar size and power you are paying for a new series Packard Standard Eight. Why not try the Packard and see if you wouldn't rather have it?

Operating costs are no greater for the Packard than for your present car. Depreciation, the major cost of car ownership, will be no greater if you follow the example of other owners and keep your Packard longer. These are facts and we can prove them with actual figures taken from your records and ours.

Why not let us show you in black and white that you are paying for a Packard? There is no obligation—and our discussion may lead to your having the car you would really prefer—the distinguished, luxurious Packard Eight.

The new Standard Eight Sedan is priced at the factory at $2385. Your present car, if of average value, will give you possession of your new Packard with little if any initial outlay—and the remainder can be arranged in convenient monthly payments. Isn't the luxury of Packard transportation—at no increased cost—worth looking into?
